DETAILED ACTION

The following is a non-final rejection in application # 09/312,351.

Remarks filed 11/20/08 have been fully considered by Examiner. Examiners reply to applicants' remarks and to the Declaration of Dr. Monahan follows the repeated text of the rejection of record.

Rejection of claims 19 and 20 under 35 USC 102(b) is withdrawn in view of applicants' remarks and Declaration of Dr. Monahan.

Maintained Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 7 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Abderhalden, Emil et al. (Berichte der Deutschen Chemischen Gessellschaft, 1916, 49 2449-2473; CAS abstract, form here on D1, cited in the office action of 2/28/08).

D1 discloses the following compound (the groups as they relate to the instant claims are labeled by the Examiner):

All the structural limitations of claims 7, 8, 19 and 20 are met by the above compound. Since the compound meets all the structural limitations set forth in the instant claims, properties such as: disulfide bond not being cleaved more rapidly than oxidized glutathione is an inherent property of the above compound (claims 7, 8) and increase in pKa of at least one constituent thiols of the disulfide bond not greater than that of glutathione pKa (claims 19-20) are inherently possessed by the above compound.

Reply to applicants' remarks and to the Monahan Declaration

Applicant has argued that the compound above fails to meet the limitation directed to the disulfide bond being cleaved more rapidly than oxidized glutathione in physiological conditions or pKa of at least one of the constituent thiols being less than the glutathione pKa.

The Monahan Declaration presents evidence to support the argument that the thiol of the arts compound has a pKa value greater than that of glutathione. Because of the greater pKa value, Dr. Monahan concludes that the arts compound would not be cleaved more rapidly than oxidized glutathione.

Examiner respectfully disagrees with the applicants. While Dr. Monahan might be correct about difference in the pKa between the thiol of the art compound and glutathione, the difference in pKa can only be used to predict the relative rates of cleaving in unassisted, heterolytic fashion. However, if the cleaving is assisted by an enzyme, the relative rates need not be necessarily be the same, also if the cleaving is homolytic, the rates could be inversed from what the pKa values suggest. Since the claim is open to any kind of cleaving of the disulfide, the compound of Abderhalden is anticipatory to the instantly claimed compound because the compound meets all of the structural limitations.

New Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

Claims 7, 8, 19 and 20 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hartter et al (Struc. Act. Nat. Pept., Proc. Fall Meet. Ges. Biol. Chem. (1981) meeting date 1979, 497-504; CAPLUS abstract is used in this rejection)

Hartter disclose the compound according to the instant claims (see sole compound in the abstract). Said compound comprises a disulfide bond, an electron withdrawing group (secondary amine on carbon 2 to the sulfur), a linker (amide and the carbon chain that follows it) and a reactive group (primary amine). Although the pKa of the resulting thiol is not disclosed, according to the Monahan Declaration, the pKa is expected to be about 7.27 (see example of Cystine-Cystine on page 3 of the declaration) which is lower than pKa of 8.9 for Glutathione (page 2 of the declaration).

Conclusion

Claims 7, 8, 19 and 20 are pending.

Claims 7, 8, 19 and 20 are rejected.
